

Review Summary

James Steele

2021-11-12

Ester et al. (2021) submitted their article originally in May of 2021. Two reviewers with expertise in the area where originally invited, with one accepting. Overall, the reviewer considered the paper to be timely and of interest to those in exercise oncology, in addition to physical activity more broadly. Acceptance with minor amendments was recommended of which most were suggestions to improve the clarity of aspects of the manuscript. A revised submission was made, and at this stage another member of the editorial team provided, and additional review of the manuscript providing feedback to improve the manuscript and also noting the need to include clarification regarding ethics/IRB approvals or exemptions in addition to disclosure of possible conflicts of interest given the affiliation of authors. The authors were able to address all of these concerns and so ultimately I took the decision to accept the manuscript.
